DEFECTED DOMINATION AT THE RACKET CLUB

EVERYBODY'S WELCOME IN OUR HOUSE!

It's going to be one for the history books - Defected are heading to The Racket Club tonight for a night-long domination of House music performed by legends in the game. Join us tonight at our rave mecca to watch performances from House icons Arielle Free, Sam Divine, Groove Armada and Eats Everything.

Defected Records is one of the world's leading House music labels in the world and we couldn't be more excited for them to be taking over The Racket Club tonight. After winning numerous awards over the years, including the International Dance Music Award for "Best House Music Label" in 2018 and 2019, Defected have built a strong reputation in the House scene for their commitment to quality house music and their continuous support of emerging talent in the scene.

Kicking off the Defected takeover is Scotland's finest, Arielle Free. Known for her passion for music and her eclectic taste in genres, Arielle seeps this passion into all aspects of her career, whether it's performing as a DJ, broadcasting on Radio 1 or presenting on TV or raising funds and awareness for charities close to her heart. Expect classic House tunes and feel good tracks from 10pm as Arielle opens up the Defected takeover tonight!

Next on the bill is Defected's very own, Sam Divine. Sam joined the Defected Records family in 2005 and quickly gained recognition for her DJ sets, which specialised in her talent for blending classic house tracks with modern sounds. Sam Divine also became a regular presenter on Defected Radio, the label's weekly radio show.

Sam will be passing the baton to House duo legends, Andy Cato and Tom Findlay, otherwise known as Groove Armada. After forming in 1996 in London the duo gained international fame for their fusion of electronic music with elements of funk, soul, and trip hop. Best known for their hit track "Superstylin'", they have also released remixed tracks for a variety of artists, including Madonna, Fatboy Slim, and Moby. Along with their classic tracks, expect a high energy performance tonight from the House duo legends.

Topping off the night will be none other than Eats Everything himself. Born and raised in Bristol, the creative hub of the West Country,

Eats Everything is renowned for his eclectic style of dance music, combining elements of house, techno, and bass. He's won awards including DJ Magazine's "Best British DJ" award in 2012 and 2013. Tonight, expect nothing less than his creative and unpredictable approach to DJing, you're guaranteed to be dancing nonstop.

From 10pm until late, make sure you get yourselves down to The Racket Club for this action packed lineup. You're not going to want to miss the mighty Defected takeover one of our most iconic Snowbombing headline venues... See you there Snowbombers!
